Advertisers in The Mercury Know

Exactly What They Are Getting

They know that the publisher has sworn an affi-davit before a notary that The Mercury has a bona fide weekly paid circulation (exclusive of free cop-ies) of 3,031. They know that The Mercury gos-into more than three times as many homes in Ren-frew and surrounding townships than any other paper, and they know that every issue is eagerly read by every member of the family.

Wise merchants don't want cheap advertising that does not reach the buyers. They want advertising space that gets their message to the people.

We don't solicit business on the basis of cheap-ness, but on the basis of service—a service that "gets the message across." At the same time the rate of advertising in The Mercury costs far, far less per 1,000 readers than that of any other medium that circulates in this territory.
